6 Stacy Long

One of the reasons All-America tackle Stacy Long came to Clemson was the school's love of tradition. Tim Bourret explains why Long is a little nervous about the most famous tradition in the South.

39 History of Memorial Stadium

What was once a small valley pierced by a stream has transformed into one of the most feared arenas in the country for opposing teams. Sam Blackman takes a look at the history of "Death Valley."

49 Levon Kirkland

One of the biggest things to hit Lamar, SC since the Egg Scramble Jamboree has been Clemson's outside linebacker Levon Kirkland. He is fast gaining national notoriety as Annabelle Vaughan explains.

53 Clemson's Outside Linebackers

Clemson's outside linebacker corp has been touted as the nation's best by The Sporting News preseason issue. This is a talented and close group. Annabelle Vaughan recreates her dialogue with this precocious group.

55 Rick Stockstill

It is no surprise that Rick Stockstill is a college coach or that he coaches the quarterbacks at Clemson. Mickey Plyler tells us that Stockstill grew up in a football oriented family.

62 Ken Hatfield

Clemson's football coach Ken Hatfield takes time out from his busy day to speak with Tim Bourret in an extensive question and answer interview.

77 Championship of the South

Sports Information's resident historian, Sam Blackman, reviews Clemson's first postseason bowl game, perhaps the most exciting game in Clemson history.

112 The Last Word

Long Beach State Head Coach George Allen will pace the same sideline that many other Hall of Fame coaches have walked. Bob Bradley remembers some classic stories about Bear Bryant, Peahead Walker and the legendary Frank Howard.

First-Year Coaches Far From Rookies

Two head coaches in their inaugural seasons with their programs will wage war in Death Valley this afternoon, but both mentors are certainly not rookies to the profession. Clemson's Ken Hatfield and Long Beach State's George Allen are in their rookie years at their respective schools, but they both have long and impressive resumes.

Hatfield has taken a team to a postseason bowl game each of the last eight seasons, one of only four active coaches in Division I who can make that claim. He is in impressive company as Tom Osborne of Nebraska, Pat Dye of Auburn and Bobby Bowden of Florida State are the only other Division I mentors who can make that claim.

Hatfield came to Clemson from Arkansas, where the native of Helena, AR had led the Razorbacks to a 55-17-1 mark, four top 15 seasons, six bowl games (including three major bowls) and conference championships in both 1988 and 1989. His winning percentage of .760 ranks second in Southwest Conference history in terms of winning percentage. Only Texas legend Darryl Royal had a higher winning percentage. The 46-year-old Hatfield had a higher winning percentage than 11 SWC coaches who are in the College Football Hall of Fame.

The 1965 Arkansas graduate began his head coaching career at Air Force where he took over a dormant program and turned it into a top 15 team in just five seasons. In 1983 he guided the Falcons to a 10-2 record, including the program's first win ever at Notre Dame. Hatfield was named National Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association.

Hatfield meets quite a challenge at Clemson as he is faced with the task of keeping America's fifth winningest program in the eighties on a similar plateau in the nineties.

Facing challenges is certainly a common denominator between today's head coaches. George Allen has been doing it for decades and at age 72 he has taken on perhaps his greatest challenge, bringing Long Beach State a consistent winner.

Clemson fans will be watching a true coaching legend at work. He is certainly a future pro football Hall of Famer. An examination of his record makes one wonder why he is not in there already.

Allen is the only pro head coach who has never had a losing season (minimum of 100 career victories). He is one of only a few head coaches who is the career winning percentage leader of two franchises. Between 1966 and 1970 he guided the Los Angeles Rams to a 49-17-4 record, a 74.2 winning percentage and a pair of Western Conference Championships.

In 1971 he moved on to the Washington Redskins where he took over a team that had just one winning season in the last 15 years. In his second year, using his famous theme "The Future is Now", he took the Skins to the Super Bowl where they lost by just seven points to perhaps the best pro team ever, the 17-0 Miami Dolphins.

In seven years with the Redskins he had the franchise in the playoffs five times and won three Eastern Conference titles. Overall, he posted a 67-30-1 record in Washington, giving him an NFL record of 116-47-5, a .712 winning percentage. That is the third best winning percentage in NFL history among coaches with at least 100 wins.

He retired from coaching the first time in 1977, but was back on the field with the USFL in 1983. As head mentor of the Chicago Blitz, he took the team to a 12-6 record and a berth in the first USFL Championship game. The next year he had the Arizona Wranglers in first place in the Western Conference.

In 1984 Allen retired again from the sport he has served so well. But, this past December he came out of retirement again after another six-year hiatus to become head coach at Long Beach State. It is his first head coaching position in college since 1956 when he was the head coach at Whittier College in California. The 1947 Michigan graduate had a 32-22-5 record at Whittier, including a 9-1 season in 1951. He also had a 17-11-2 mark in three years at Morningside College in Iowa.

49er Scouting Report

Clemson is playing the 49ers in its season opener, but fortunately for the Tigers, Joe Montana will not be the opponent quarterback. Quarterback is a major question for the Long Beach State 49ers, they are not sure who will step to the forefront at the signal caller position this year.

George Allen does not have the luxury of a returning starter at quarterback this season, something all first-year coaches would like to see. He should have started on the job a year earlier because Paul Oates, last year's starter, was a very good one. He started all 12 games, completed 168 passes for 2621 yards and 19 touchdowns. He could strike from anywhere on the field.

Long Beach State averaged 220 yards passing a game last year compared to only 125 yards rushing. If Allen continues this format to his offense he will have to get some production out of the quarterback position.

Heading into fall practice it was a tossup as to who would toss the ball for the 49ers. Junior red-shirt Todd Studer was impressive in the spring, as was senior Bobby San Jose. Two returnees, Bill Grudza and Richard Burns, also will be in the picture. Studer is a junior college transfer, while San Jose is a transfer from UCLA (why did he not attend San Jose State?).

Grudza played quarterback in three games a year ago and completed 4-11 passes. He also rushed nine times for 58 yards. Burns is another JC transfer who was the MVP at Santa Ana Junior College his final year.

If someone can assume the leadership role at quarterback that person will work with one of the top wide receivers on the West Coast. Sean Foster is the top offensive threat for Long Beach State. The All-Big West performer caught 49 passes for 1021 yards a year ago, a reception yardage total that is higher than any Clemson receiver past or present has ever gained. Foster caught nine TD passes last year, fourth most in 49er history. He had four games in which he caught passes for over 100 yards, including a 213-yard effort against San Jose State off just seven receptions.

Defensively Long Beach State is led by Pepper Jenkins, a second-team all-conference choice as a defensive tackle last year. One of the first things Allen did was move him to an outside linebacker position to take advantage of his speed. Jenkins had a standout season in 1989 with 11 sacks, 18 tackles for loss, a 51-yard interception return for touchdown and 88 tackles.

Long Beach State gave up 450 yards a game and had some interesting scores last year (like 55-48, 30-26 etc.) An addition to the coaching staff should help. Willie Brown, one of the best defensive backs in the history of the NFL has joined Allen at Long Beach State and will coach the secondary. Brown played 16 years in pro football, 12 with the Oakland Raiders. He is still the co-holder of the Raider interception record, was All-Pro seven times and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility.

Clemson Outlook

While Long Beach State's forte is offense, Clemson's area of strength should be on the defensive side of the line of scrimmage. Clemson has eight starters (plus a reserve who was All-ACC) back from the nation's fifth ranked rushing, scoring and total defense.

Clemson has six returning All-ACC players on defense, two in the first line of defense, one linebacker and two in the secondary. Clemson's linebacker group (inside and outside combined) was named the top group of its kind in the nation by The Sporting News College Football Yearbook.

Levon Kirkland, John Johnson and Doug Brewster are the leaders of this group. Kirkland was a first-team All-ACC choice by UPI last year when he had 77 tackles and nine tackles for loss. He topped off his season by his selection as the MVP of the Gator Bowl win over West Virginia.

Johnson and Brewster have been roommates and classmates since they came to Clemson and they are committed to going out in style. Johnson was a second-team All-ACC choice in 1989 after he was third on the team in tackles with 68. Brewster, a native of nearby Athens, GA, led the club with 100 tackles and he also had nine pass deflections.

Vance Hammond is a returning all-conference down lineman and he is the leader of the interior division of labor on defense. Hammond had 57 tackles last year and is a preseason second-team All-American according to Don Heinrich's Magazine.

The secondary is a veteran, talented group. Robert O'Neal was not a starter last year for the course of the season, but he led the ACC in interceptions with a Clemson record eight thefts. Dexter Davis was All-ACC according to UPI and had 13 passes broken up. Jerome Henderson is a senior who had 14 passes broken up to lead the team. He might be the most under-rated player in the ACC.

Clemson has the man-handlers up front, but the ball toters are inexperienced. Stacy Long is a returning first-team All-American at offensive tackle (see page 6 of this program), while Eric Harmon is a returning all-conference offensive guard. Jeb Flesch was second-team all-conference at the other guard slot. Additionally, tight end Stacy Fields and starting tackle Bruce Bratton were both academic All-ACC, so five of the six interior linemen are returning all-stars of some degree.

DeChane Cameron should be the starting quarterback. The junior hit 32-48 passes a year ago and had the best stats of any Clemson reserve quarterback in the decade of the eighties. In 1990 he will get his chance to run the show. Rodney Blunt is the top tailback off his performance last spring, while Terry Smith and Doug Thomas should be the leaders at wide receiver slots. Tony Kennedy is the leading returning rusher from last year. He played like an all-conference performer with a six-yard average over the last two games of the season.

Clemson's most valuable player might play just 15 snaps per game. Chris Gardocki, the all-purpose weapon, handles kickoffs, punts and placekicks with unequalled excellence. Heranked in the top 10 in the nation in punting and field goals last year, just the second player in NCAA history to do that in the same season.

Seniors Begin Pursuit of Record

This year's group of seniors will be seeking to break a record of note held by its immediate predecessors. The 1990 Clemson seniors need just nine wins to become the winningest class in ACC history. The group has a 30-6 ledger heading into the season after three straight 10-2 ledgers, an 83.3 winning percentage. That is a tie for the fifth best winning percentage in ACC history.

The league record for overall wins is 38, set by last year's Clemson senior class, which had a record of 38-8-2. Clemson owns the top three winningest classes in ACC history and four of the top five on a total wins basis. The ACC mark for winning percentage is .863, held by the Maryland classes of 1953 and 1954.

Five Tigers Preseason All-American

Five different Clemson players were chosen to various preseason All-America teams by various publications. In addition to Stacy Long, other all-star Tigers include Doug Brewster, Levon Kirkland, Chris Gardocki and Vance Hammond.

Brewster and Hammond were both second-team All-Americans by Don Heinrich's College Football Sport, while Kirkland is a third-team choice by The Sporting News. Kirkland was chosen as the sixth best linebacker in the nation

Long Beach on Long Journey

Long Beach State travelled 2300 miles to reach Clemson for today's game and that is the farthest any Clemson opponent has had to travel for a game at Death Valley. The previous high was 1050 miles by Boston College when Doug Flutie and the Eagles flew to Clemson for a 1982 game that resulted in a 17-17 tie.

In 1973 Texas A&M travelled approximately 980 miles to Death Valley. Other long sojourns for Clemson opponents include Rice (925), TCU (915) and Notre Dame (815).

Henderson led a talented secondary in PBUs last year.

Stacy Long stands 6-2, weighs 275 pounds, bench-presses 450 pounds, power cleans 300 pounds and has the most impressive barrel chest on the 1990 Clemson football team. A check of the video tape indicates he just runs over his opposition on the defensive line with the single thrust of his upper body and leg drive. In 1989, an All-America season for the current leader of Clemson's offensive line, he had no fears.

At least that is what he would have you believe.

But, Stacy Long does have one fear in regards to football. Just watch the Tigers run down the hill prior to today's game and you will discover his secret phobia.

"Vance Hammond and I always run down the hill last because we don't want to be the first Clemson football players to fall," says Long, a senior who must master the nation's most celebrated stadium entrance just six more times.

"Only two people have fallen down the hill, but they were not players. That goes back to 1942 so we figure the players that fall down the hill the first time will get quite a bit of attention. I'm not worried about the injury as much as the embarrassment. I'd never hear the end of it."

It would probably be a national story. You can just see the cut-ins on the CBS game of the week. Jim Nantz in the studio with Long's mug over his shoulder as the first Clemson player to fall down the hill. "It's a bad dream."

That's why Hammond and Long are usually the last ones down the hill. They want to take their time and be careful. "If you are in the middle of the pack, you are forced to go faster. Guys are fired up and when you get to that little plateau in the middle of the hill it is easy to trip."

With this unusual phobia you might think Long is not fired up about some of Clemson's traditions, but the opposite is true. "One of the reasons I came to Clemson was the number of traditions that exist. When you come to a football game at Clemson you can't help but get fired up. I am the type of guy who gets excited about rubbing the rock, running down the hill, seeing 80,000 people in the stands. Some players downplay that, but not me, it is one of the reasons I came to Clemson."

Long is one of six members of the 1990 club from the state of Georgia who earned at least All-ACC honors last year. Of course, Long earned first-team All-America honors from The Sporting News and was a third-team choice by AP.

"I wanted to go away to school," continued Long. "I went to four Clemson football games on my own my senior year of high school, then took my official visit on a basketball weekend. I really fell in love with the place."

Long made swift strides when he came to Clemson, something few offensive linemen accomplish as first-year freshmen. In 1986, Long was in the starting lineup in the second game of the season at Georgia, his home state.

"I was nervous and did not play very well in that first game. My knees were shaking. I'm glad I had that experience, but I still had a lot to learn. I lasted just the first two series of the game." Long was one of only two first-year freshmen in the decade of the 1980s to start a game on the offensive line for the Tigers.

Long played sparingly the next few games and did not appear over the last six contests of the season. He was not performing well in the classroom and was academically ineligible for the 1987 season. He spent the year away from Clemson loading trucks, an occupation that kept his upper body in shape, but did nothing for his overall future.

"That really was a tough year, but I grew up a lot that semester I was away from Clemson. Working the graveyard shift on a loading dock in Atlanta taught me all I wanted to know about the real world. I knew then I was coming back to Clemson and that I would make the most of my second opportunity."

When Long returned he was almost immediately elevated to the second team. By mid-season of 1988 he was playing well, good enough to start for most teams. But, he was the understudy for one of Clemson's top linemen in the 1980s, two-time All-ACC tackle Jeff Nunamacher.

"I learned a lot watching Nunamacher. You can learn a lot from a coach, but watching a great player you work with everyday can help also. I was happy with my play and did not lose any confidence just because I was not starting. I still believed in myself."

That's why it was no surprise to Stacy Long when he had an all-star junior season. This is not to say Long is cocky, he is just confident in his abilities. We didn't see much of Stacy Long prior to 1989 because he labored behind an all-star player. In five years Clemson fans will look back at the lineups for the 1988 offensive line and will say, "you mean Nunamacher and Long were both at the same position that year?"

With Nunamacher's graduation after the 1988 season it was time for Long to move to the forefront. "We knew Stacy Long was a talented player," said Bill D'Andrea, Long's position coach in 1988 and 1989. "Stacy is a great athlete who is big and strong, but he is a finesse player. That is why he is so successful, he has the strength, but also has the finesse."

Long set a Clemson record for knockdowns by a tackle, many of them were devastating.

"Stacy plays with pain also. That might be the most impressive thing about him last year, he received all those awards and had all those knockdown blocks while playing with a lot of pain. He showed leadership by example to the rest of the team because they knew what he was going through." Long played much of the season with a broken thumb and a hernia problem.

The native of Griffin, GA finished the 1989 season with 69 knockdown blocks, a Clemson record for an offensive tackle. He became just the second junior tackle in Clemson history to earn All-America honors. Joe Bostic, who just concluded a pro career that lasted over a decade, is the other Tiger to reach this accomplishment.

Long finished the season with grades of at least 79 percent in each of his last eight games. He had a career high tying 10 knockdown blocks against South Carolina and nine against West Virginia in the Gator Bowl. He had an 88 percent grade against the Gamecocks, the highest of his career. Those were outstanding games for Long, but two contests were landmark outings for "the Assassin."

"The Florida State and N.C. State games were turning points for me. In a lot of peoples minds the game in Tallahassee was the turning point in my career. But, the N.C. State game against Ray Agnew was just as important. It was a big game for us coming off the Georgia Tech loss. We needed to get Clemson football back on track. For me, I was going against the ACC Defensive Player of the Year and a first-round (10th pick) choice."

Long had a career high tying 10 knockdown blocks at Florida State and an 85 percent grade as he helped Clemson gain 255 yards rushing against the Seminoles' fine defensive line, a line that limited National Champion Miami to 10 points. Clemson downed the Seminoles 34-23 in Florida State's last loss of the season.

Long had an 82 percent grade and seven knockdowns against the Wolfpack in a 20-point Clemson victory. Long was named ACC Lineman of the Week, an honor he won four times last year, more than any other ACC player.

Long's strong finish has led to a long list of preseason honors in 1990. Don Heinrich's College Football Preview calls Long the top offensive lineman in the nation and an Outland Trophy candidate. The Sporting News lists him as the best offensive tackle in the nation. He is listed on nearly every preseason All-America team.

Long joins fellow red-shirt seniors Stacy Fields and Eric Harmon to give Clemson the most experienced offensive line in the ACC.

"I have personal goals for this year, but only to the extent that we have a good year. If I win the Outland Trophy that means I have had a good year and have helped the team. I am not going to get any individual awards without the team doing well. I hope to play pro football, but I am not going to think about that until the season ends. I've got to do well for Clemson University."

Many pro scouts are already checking out Long and feel he could be a fine pro. Long has played both guard and tackle for Clemson in his career and he most probably will move to guard in the pros. "I really like playing guard more than tackle," said Long. "I only moved to tackle because it was for the good of the team. If I continue my career at the pro level it will be as a guard. I like to pull, you just do more things as a guard."

Chances are a pro career is in the offing for Long. He has the size, strength, leadership qualities and motivation to make it in the NFL. Probably the only thing that could hold him back is falling down the hill.

President Max Lennon

In the four years Max Lennon has been president of Clemson, the university has become one of the nation's top 100 research universities (according to the National Science Foundation), launched its largest fundraising campaign ever, and entered its second century. But no single event during his administration may have been more important than this year's emphasis on strategic planning.

At Lennon's directive, during the past year Clemson faculty, staff and administrators have developed a blueprint for Clemson's future. As a result, Clemson enters the 1990's better prepared than ever to serve the state's needs as South Carolina's land-grant university.

The strategic plan calls for increased emphasis on undergraduate education, the environment, advanced materials, and biotechnology—areas Lennon considers critical to the state's future.

"There is an urgent need to develop a campus consensus about university priorities, and that's been the goal of our academic strategic planning process," Lennon said. "This year-long, faculty-driven process has defined four areas where we should devote greater resources, because they are areas in which we are convinced we can be a leader."

Evidence of the potential for leadership in the 1990s already is emerging, particularly in environmental sciences, to be the focus of a $10 million research initiative launched by the university in 1990. Lennon also sees potential for national leadership in innovative public-service programs, such as those in agriculture, engineering and other disciplines that enabled Clemson to help South Carolina recover from the devastation of Hurricane Hugo.

"Our goal is to become the model among land-grant universities by providing education with relevance," he said.

"As a land grant college, we have an obligation to rural development and to help eliminate the pockets of poverty and illiteracy that remain in this state. Education is the answer, and we have an obligation to make education accessible to all people."

Lennon came to Clemson from The Ohio State University, where he had been the vice-president for agricultural administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture, and as director of the Agriculture Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, N.C., and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N. C. State.

"Our goal is to become the model among land-grant universities by providing education with relevance."

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from his local Rotary Club and the South Carolina Research Authority to the Board of Directors of EARTH in Costa Rica which aims through education and investments aims to improve third world agriculture.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. He will serve a four-year term as the university representative on the board, which also includes farmers, legislators and executives of leading agricultural industries.

Lennon was appointed in 1988 to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBio-tech 88 international conference in Washington.

Last year Lennon was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel Ray (28), and Robin (25).

Under Lennon's leadership, Clemson has become one of the nation's top 100 research universities.

Head Coach Ken Hatfield

Facing challenges head on: that might be Ken Hatfield's most significant asset. It has helped him in all walks of life, but especially when it comes to football.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he moulded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top-20 five times.

As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

And now he faces another challenge at Clemson. His charge is to continue Clemson's contemporary excellence (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in the decade of the eighties). But if Hatfield's track record for meeting challenges is any indication, Clemson football is in good hands entering the 1990s.

That track record has included eight straight trips to post-season bowls, including major bowl appearances in three of the last four years. Hatfield is one of just four active coaches to take a team to a bowl each of the last eight years. He is in noteworthy company as the other members of that exclusive club are Tom Osborne (Nebraska), Pat Dye (Auburn) and Bobby Bowden (Florida State).

Hatfield has an overall record of 82-48-2 (.629), but he has won 77 percent of his games over the last seven seasons (65-19-1). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage. Hatfield's SWC winning percentage was higher than 11 former SWC coaches who are in the College Football Hall of Fame, including Bear Bryant, Frank Broyles, Jess Neely, and John Heisman.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and has been the head coach in eight bowls. Five times he has coached a team to a top 15 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last eight teams have finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including five top 10 finishes. His 1983 Air Force team was second in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports Magazine last summer. Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons. His 1967 club posted a 9-0 record.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under current New York Giants Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the Big Apple and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razor-in the nation in rushing.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense five of the last six years.

backs' first Top 20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championship and the Razorbacks never finished lower than second in his six years at Fayetteville. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

After last season's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield has also had success off the field. A recent release by the CFA cited his 1989 Arkansas class for excellence in terms of graduation rate (over 75 percent), one of the top 10 figures in the nation.

"Football is a part of a young man's education. He learns about himself by playing football," states Hatfield. "It gives him a perspective of how to handle defeat as well as victory. Our success at Clemson will be reflected in the lives of our players after they leave Clemson University. We want to help make them the best people they can be. We want to maximize their potential. That is our challenge."

These statements were certainly watchwords for Hatfield as a player and these experiences have helped him in his relationship with his players. Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

His most memorable play took place against Texas in 1964 when he raced 81 yards with a punt return for a touchdown in Arkansas' thrilling 14-13 victory. It was the key victory in the Razorbacks' championship season. Altogether, Hatfield scored five TDs via punt returns in his career, including an Arkansas record 95-yard return against Tulsa in 1963.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

A Waycross, GA, native, Herrin earned his bachelor's and master's degree from Western Carolina where he was a four-year letterman in football and a team captain. During his first two years at Clemson, the Tigers ranked in the top 10 in scoring and rushing defense. Herrin also coached ACC MVP Jeff Davis, who went on to be captain of the Tampa Bay Bucs and 1989 All-Pro Johnny Rembert of the New England Patriots. Clemson ranked in the top-10 in scoring and rushing defense his first two years at Clemson and last season ranked fifth in the nation in scoring, rushing and total defense.

earned his bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education from Appalachian State in 1974, where he played defensive back for the Mountaineers and led the team in interceptions as a senior. He coached Kerry Owens, currently with the Cleveland Browns, while at Arkansas, where the Razorbacks ranked in the top 20 in the nation in rushing defense four of his six years. Hinshaw's recruiting responsibilities include the state of Louisiana, and parts of North Carolina and South Carolina.

RICK STOCKSTILL is in his second season with the Tigers after joining the Clemson coaching staff in February of 1989. Stockstill came to Clemson from the University of Central Florida, where he spent four years as assistant head coach and wide receiver coach (1985-89). Stockstill's responsibilities at Clemson include coaching the Tiger quarterbacks and recruiting sections of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Prior to his stay at Central Florida, Stockstill spent two seasons as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach at Bethune-Cookman (1983-84). The Sidney, OH, native earned three letters in football from Florida State University, where he quarterbacked the Seminoles to consecutive Orange Bowl appearances after the 1979 and 1980 seasons. Stockstill was also a 1980 and 1981 All-Southern Independent and All-Metro Conference performer for FSU. He received his bachelor's degree in physical education from Florida State in 1982, where he was an honorable mention All-American. FSU was ranked sixth nationally in 1979 and fifth in 1980. In his first season with the Tiger coaching staff as quarterbacks coach, Clemson set a school record for completion percentage (60%).

BOB TROTT serves as the Tigers' defensive coordinator in addition to coaching the defensive secondary. He spent the 1989 season as the defensive coordinator at Arkansas, where he was also the defensive back coach from 1984 to 1988. Prior to working with the Razorbacks, Trott was the defensive back coach at Air Force for three seasons (1981-83), and worked with the Falcon outside linebackers for three seasons (1978-80). He was also a part-time assistant coach at North Carolina in 1976 and 1977. Trott was a three-year letterman at the University of North Carolina and won academic All-ACC honors as a senior. He has coached five professional players: Kevin Wyatt (Miami), Greg Lasker (N.Y. Giants), Steve Atwater (Denver), Anthony Cooney and Richard Brothers (Chicago). Ninety-five percent of the players he coached at Arkansas received their degrees. Trott earned his bachelor's degree in business from North Carolina in 1976 and his master's in teaching in 1982. He is responsible for recruiting Tennessee, and areas in North Carolina and South Carolina.

LARRY VAN DER HEYDEN has been at Clemson longer than any other coach on the 1990 staff after joining the Tigers on January 5, 1979. The Brazil, Iowa native coaches the offensive line and is in his first season as the Tigers' offensive coordinator. He came to Clemson after coaching at Memphis State (1975-78), where he served as offensive coordinator, Virginia (1974-75), East Carolina (1973-74), Indiana State (1969-73), and Drake University (1968-69). Van Der Heyden coached the defensive line at his alma mater, Iowa State, from 1965 to 1967, and served as a graduate assistant coach there in 1964. He is a member of the all-time Iowa State team, selected by former players and coaches, and was a member of the Big Eight all-conference team and the captain of the baseball team in 1961. He also won the Reuben Miller Award for Most Valuable Player on and off the field at Iowa State that same year. Van Der Heyden earned three letters in both football and baseball from Iowa State and received a bachelor's degree in physical education (1962) and a master's degree in education (1968) from the same institution. He has coached three All-America guards over the last seven years at Clemson and for a five-year period (1983-87), one of his guards was chosen All-ACC. Clemson has ranked in the top-20 in the nation in rushing offense six of the last seven years while Van Der Heyden has been the offensive line coach. His recruiting areas include South Carolina, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Tennessee.

RICHARD WILSON works with the Tiger wide receivers in addition to recruiting the Columbia and Charleston, SC, areas, parts of Texas, and all junior colleges. He comes to Clemson after a year as the receiver coach at Arkansas (1989) and two seasons at The Citadel, where he worked with the wide receivers (1988) and the defensive secondary (1987). He spent the 1986 season as a volunteer coach and head junior varsity coach at Missouri, where he worked as a graduate assistant in 1984 and 1985. The Hope, AR, native played one year at Central Arkansas for the National Championship team and spent three years as a player at Arkansas, where he saw action in the secondary and on special teams and played on the 1980 Sugar Bowl team. He coached two professional players while at Missouri, Eric McMillan (N.Y. Jets) and Robert Delphino (L.A. Rams) and Arkansas was 11th in the nation in total offense his only year with the Razorbacks. Wilson earned a bachelor's degree in education from Arkansas in 1981 and received a master's in sports management from Missouri in 1985.

Clemson's Alumni Center Isn't What It Used To Be... It's Better!

We've remodeled, and we're open before and after each home football game. Our new look is comfortable, updated and available for your enjoyment.

We also have a new mobile Alumni Center. Our Alumni Association van is your Alumni "on the road" headquarters. You'll find the van at away football games, Clemson Club meetings and near the football stadium at home games. The van brings Clemson to you wherever you are.

We may look different, but we're still dedicated to serving, informing and involving you in the ongoing life of Clemson University.

We look different . . . both on campus and on the road . . . and we're looking for you.

Clemson Coaches

In addition to the success enjoyed by the 12th-ranked 1989 football squad, nine other Clemson sports ranked in the final top 25 nationally for the 1989-90 sports year. Clemson was the only school in the nation that won a bowl game, an NCAA Tournament basketball game and an NCAA tournament baseball game in the 1989-90 year. It marked the second straight year that Clemson has pulled off this triple play. Clemson and Illinois were the only schools in the nation to participate in all three of those postseason events.

Three Tiger sports programs won conference championships as the men's indoor and outdoor track teams won the ACC Championship and the Tiger golf squad tied for first in the conference. The Tigers boasted 82 first-team All-ACC players last year, a new school record, and 20 Clemson athletes won All-America honors.

Both of Clemson's basketball teams advanced to the Sweet 16 of their respective NCAA tournaments. Clemson was one of only three programs to have both teams in the Sweet 16. Clemson also had two conference MVPs in spring sports as centerfielder Brian Kowitz won the honor in baseball and James Trapp was the MVP of the outdoor track season. Philip Greyling was the Tigers' third conference MVP, winning honors for indoor track.

Three Clemson coaches were named ACC Coach-of-the-Year in four different sports, as Bob Pollock won honors for the indoor and outdoor track seasons, along with Jim Davis (women's basketball) and Cliff Ellis (men's basketball).

For the seventh consecutive year, JP Sports brings you the up-close action of twelve ACC games. No wonder ACC Football is the most watched regional collegiate TV network in the U.S.

In addition to ACC Football, look for other JP Sports programming, such as ACC Basketball, SEC Basketball and Great American Independent Football, a coalition of some of the strongest independent football teams in the country, just to name a few.

Just clip this ACC schedule and check local listings for the station carrying the games you want to see.

Then, if you don't get tickets to the game, you can get great reception at home.

Clemson Memorial Stadium

Just before Jess Neely left for Rice University, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing- there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow ... and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron moved on to be a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen to twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the building of the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was being poured. The story claims the tobacco is still there.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid the sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through."

"After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,568 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled- the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to approximately 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian College coach, Lonnie McMillian. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillian said the place was like Death Valley.

A few years later, the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features which make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house."

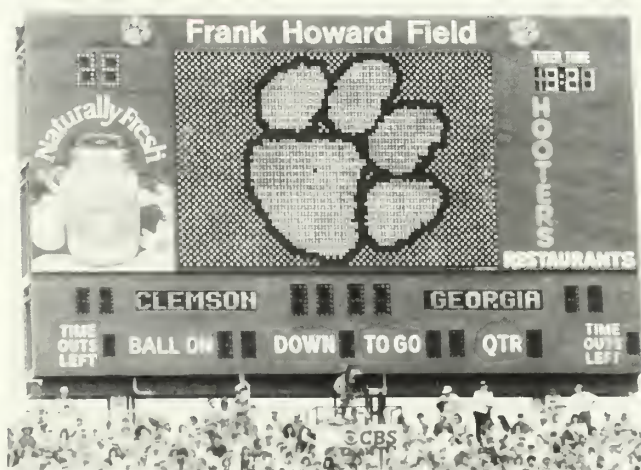

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. A unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Rick Brewer, an official in the University athletic ticket office says that despite the stadium's large size, there are still season ticket problems. "When the second upper deck was built, we thought it would take care of everything," he said. "To our dismay, it hasn't. We've filled the upper decks and have moved season ticket holders into the end zone, which are not permanent seats."

Despite the apparent ticket crunch, Robinson says there are no immediate plans to further expand the stadium. "Before we expand we'll have to show over an extended length of time- like five to seven years- that we can sell out what we have now," he said. "We don't want supply to greatly exceed demand. Even though it's hard to get tickets now, we still get people in our stadium. The ticket means more if it's harder to get."

But, if Memorial Stadium is expanded again and capacity is pushed closer to 100,000, there will be room for the construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horse-shoe.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has over 100 luxury boxes, more than any other on-campus facility in the nation. Clemson's message board keeps fans up to date with other scores and stats, and also projects player's pictures after an outstanding play.

History of Memorial Stadium

by Sam Blackman

When former Head Coach Frank Howard first conceived the idea of building a new football stadium in the 1940s, he not only helped start the construction of what would later be one of the finest stadiums in America, but he also built a solid foundation for the entire athletic department.

Memorial Stadium has undergone five seating additions not to mention other facility changes since 1942 that have helped mold it into a showplace of college football. But it was Howard who actually first laid the sod and helped pour the concrete of the original structure. It is indeed the "House that Frank Built."

Prior to the 1942 season, Clemson played at Bowman Field (1896-1914) and Riggs Field (1915-1941), the current site of the Clemson soccer stadium. The Tigers soon outgrew their den and needed a new place to play. The movement started for a new stadium in the fall of 1940. "It was a natural valley," were the words of some as they described the site that was selected below Fike Field House for the new stadium in 1940. In fact, there was a stream running down the middle of this natural ravine.

Memorial stadium, in its 49th year of existence, is proof that things do get better with age.

The following is a chronological history of Memorial Stadium:

April 3, 1941—An act authorizing a $150,000 bond issue by Clemson for a new athletic stadium was ratified by the General Assembly.

April 11, 1941—Clemson dedicated the front segment of Fike Field House. The $75,000 unit housed athletic offices, dressing rooms, 23 dormitory rooms and a memorial hall. This wing currently is the front of the Fike Recreation center. This facility is where the football players dressed before football games, practices, etc. and it was necessary that the Tigers used the hill to enter the stadium, simply because it was the shortest route to the south sidelines.

Sept. 17, 1941—Clemson athletic officials announced the $104,000 stadium construction was to begin soon.

Sept. 1941—Clemson civil engineering students surveyed the land and drew up plans for the grandstands, which were built in concrete along the red clay walls of the natural bowl. Credit for the design of the stadium goes to Carl Lee of Charlotte, NC, a Clemson graduate of '08 and Professor H.E. Glenn of the engineering faculty.

Oct. 6, 1941—Construction work began on Memorial Stadium. The work of cleaning, digging and leveling the site as well as cutting large trees and clearing underbrush was supervised by Frank Howard the previous summer. There was little need for leveling the field, but there were some trees growing at the site and it was left up to Howard and some football players in summer school to remove them for the task ahead. He was there with the start of construction from the word go. "Before they sank the corner posts for the stands, I put a plug of chewing tobacco at the bottom of each hole for good luck," said Howard.

Summer, 1942—The 20,000-seat stadium was finished with a completed value of $125,000, which in business terms means each seat was worth $6.50.

Sept. 19, 1942—Clemson opened Memorial Stadium as the Tigers' Butch Butler gained 192 yards rushing in leading Clemson to a 32-13 win over Presbyterian before a crowd of 5,500. The press box from Riggs Field was brought over to the new stadium to serve the purpose until another could be built. High school students were admitted for .25, while servicemen were allowed in for .50.

Nov. 7, 1942—A new speaker system and a new clock were used for the first time at Clemson's Memorial stadium. Also, new dressing rooms at the west end of the field were used for the first time. George Washington defeated Clemson by the score of 7-0.

Sept. 23, 1944—Clemson moved into the new press and radio box which was used until the 1978 season.

Sept. 25, 1948—Clemson played its first ever night home game with a 53-0 win over Presbyterian. It was believed after this game that Presbyterian's coach Lonnie McMillian nicknamed Memorial Stadium "Death Valley" because it was so hot and was a tough place to play. Coach Howard started calling the stadium that and the name stuck. Another legend had been born at the feet of Frank Howard.

Sept. 22, 1956—The Tigers played their last night home game with a 27-7 win over Presbyterian. Clemson has not played an official night game at home since this time.

June 14, 1957—Governor Timmerman signed a bill allowing Clemson to borrow money to enlarge the stadium.

Sept. 20, 1958—Leo Wright, designer of the Wunda Weave Carpet, Co. of Greenville displayed his new product—the world's largest college banner. The banner was the rug Clemson placed on the hill for the Tigers to run on in their entrance to the stadium. The rug was officially given to Clemson on this date before the Clemson-Virginia game. The rug measured 104 feet long and was 13 feet wide, with a weight of 527 pounds.

Also at this game, Clemson's recent expansion of Memorial Stadium was used for the first time, (the seats above the portals and below the upper decks). The stadium was expanded from 20,000 to 38,000 seats. Clemson defeated Virginia in a come from behind victory as Bill Mathis scored the Clemson Memorial Stadium has undergone five additions since the original stadium was completed in 1942.

About an hour east of Columbia, SC, just a stone's throw off Interstate 20, in an area of the state known as the Pee Dee, lies the tiny town of Lamar. Like many small southern towns, there may not always be a lot to do in Lamar and it's probably not known for much more than just a gas stop on the way to the beach.

Well, actually there is the Egg Scramble Jam-boree to look forward to every year, and the citizens of Lamar can always go watch a high school football game during the fall. And the town is known (at least in that part of the state) as the home of Tommy Suggs, a fellow who used to play quarterback for another university somewhere in South Carolina.

But recently, the small town of Lamar (population 1,300 before the results of the new census were tallied) is getting a little more attention, at least from people who like to wear orange and have more than a few Tiger paws scattered throughout their homes. Lamar has the proud distinction of being the hometown of Clemson outside linebacker Levon Kirkland, who not only is well-known on the streets of Lamar these days, but throughout the state. In fact, Clemson's Captain Kirk is fast gaining national notoriety.

The first impression the people of Lamar, or at least Kirkland's next door neighbors, may have had of him was probably not what you would expect from Clemson's all-star. "I was a strange little boy," Kirkland remembers. "I played by myself all the time. I think I just enjoyed that more because I could pretend whatever I wanted to. Most of the time I would play football by myself, if you can imagine that. I would make up two teams and I would have different names for everybody. The quarterback's name might be J.J. Miller and the wide receiver would be something like Randy Robinson.

"I would be all of them. I would snap the ball, throw the ball, catch the ball - I would even be the announcer. 'J.J. gets the ball from center, he puts it up and hits Randy Robinson in the endzone. TOUCHDOWN!!' Then I would go down there and jump around, give a high five to the air and scream and yell. My brothers and sisters thought I was crazy, but I always had fun because of my imagination."

By the time he reached high school, the games Kirkland had imagined in his backyard in Lamar had moved down the road to the high school stadium. And even though there were other guys on the field this time, Kirkland played almost as many positions as he did in his imaginary contests, lining up at outside linebacker, tight end, wide receiver, and returning kickoffs and punts for Lamar High.

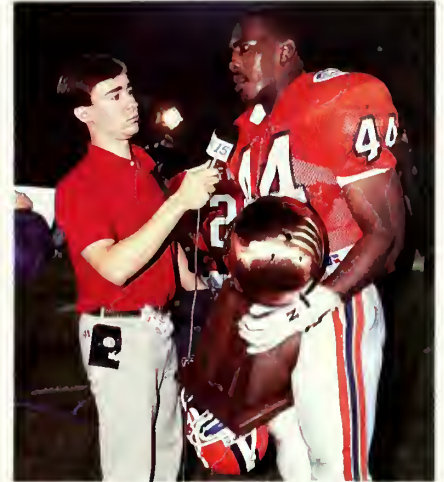

Kirkland shows the same imagination he exhibited in his backyard when he remembers his high school playing days. "There would be a whole lot of firecrackers, and the band would play '2001'...Da, Da, DA!...and the rest of my teammates would run out...Dum, Dum, Dum, Dum...and then they would roll out this red carpet...Da-Dum...and then this helicopter would land...Dum, Dum, Dum, Dum...and the pilot opens the door...DA-DUM, DA-DUM...and I jump out and raise my hands...AND THE CROWD GOES CRAZY!!!"

"Actually, I weighed less than 200 pounds in high school so maybe I wasn't that impressive, but I did get around the ball a lot," laughs Kirkland. "And the stadium was pretty small, but boy, we put some people in there."

By the time Kirkland's senior year rolled around, he was being recruited by Clemson and South Carolina and ultimately chose to come to Tigertown. "I think I was probably under-recruited because of my size and because I came from a small school. I knew when I came here that I could contribute but I wasn't sure how much the coaches thought I could do. I looked around and there was all this competition at my position! Before I knew it, I was being red-shirted.

"But I look back now and realize that was the best thing that could have happened. My high school weight room had one machine, one bench, a squat rack, and that was basically it. I really hit the weight room hard that first year and by the time the next season started, I weighed 222. I had also gained some confidence in my abilities over that year, mostly from watching Jesse Hatcher. Jesse was like me, he was in the shadows and then he just came out of nowhere. BAM! I looked at Jesse and I knew I could do what he did."

The word "BAM!" could also describe the impact Kirkland had on the team when his chance to play finally came. He finished fifth on the entire team in tackles in 1988 with 71 and led the special teams with 21 stops. When he made a hit, it didn't seem to matter that he had been too small in high school, or that he came from a town whose population would only fill half of the green grass section of the endzone in Death

Kirkland was named MVP of the 1989 Mazda Gator Bowl when he had nine tackles, a sack and three quarterback pressures.

Valley. His 5.5 sacks and 71 tackles were the best ever by a Clemson freshman outside linebacker, and that sack total ranked second on the entire team. The Sporting News deemed him the third best special teams tackler in the nation following that season and also put him on their freshman honor roll.

When Kirkland took the field for his sophomore season, confidence was no longer a problem. He fast became one of the defensive leaders of the team, despite his lack of seniority. His statistics, although impressive in their own right, took second place to his enthusiasm. When Kirkland made a sack, the crowd of Tiger faithful could always expect to see some sort of celebration from the young outside linebacker. And when he happened to pick off a pass, which he did three times in 1989, his excitement was as much of a crowd-pleaser as the fact that the Tigers had gained possession of the ball. When he had nine tackles, a sack, a pass broken up, and three quarterback pressures against West Virginia and Major Harris in the Gator Bowl, the folks back in Lamar may have remembered the same little boy who used to play by himself in the backyard. And the whole town was surely proud of their native son when Kirkland accepted the Gator Bowl MVP trophy live on ESPN at the game's conclusion.

"Nothing can compare to the feeling I had that night," says Kirkland, whose calm, quiet off-the-field demeanor sharply contrasts to his on-field excitement. "Not even those exciting backyard battles. I think intensity is contagious. I play football with a controlled craziness. If I do what I am supposed to do and then make the play, I think it's OK to raise my hands up for the fans or just do something crazy. It gets the fans motivated and it gets the team motivated. I feed off that."

These days, Kirkland's teammates are calling him G.E., because of the fact that Tiger coaches are always boasting about him giving great effort. Many preseason publications are calling him an All-ACC and All-America candidate for the second year in a row. The Sporting News calls him one of the leaders of the best group of linebackers in the country. Meanwhile, back in Lamar, SC, the fine folks are just proud to call him one of their own.

Kirkland is already seventh in Clemson history in career quarterback sacks with 12 and he is just halfway through his career.

There are few things in life (or at least in the life of a Clemson football fan), that are more enjoyable than watching the Tiger outside linebackers play ball. Levon Kirkland nailing the quarterback behind the line, John Johnson batting down a pass, Wayne Simmons intercepting the ball, or Ashley Sheppard stopping a kickoff return cold - it doesn't get much better than that.

But this writer has found one thing that may be more enjoyable than watching Clemson's fearsome foursome on the football field: sitting down and having a conversation with them. In only a little over an hour, I learned a few lessons in philosophy, a thing or two about football, and even a couple of jokes. John, the oldest, craziest, and (according to all four) wisest, served as group spokesman. Levon, the gentleman, or "Knight in Shining Armor" added to John's words of wisdom in a slightly more serious tone. Wayne, the "bad little brother," never hesitated to give his opinions (quite loudly at times), while Ashley, the quiet one, sat back and laughed at his more boisterous teammates.

Who's the hardest to get along with?

John, Levon, Ashley (in unison): "Wayne!"

Why is Wayne so hard to get along with?

John: Because it's his way or no way!

Levon: When we choose sides, who always has to have their side?

John: And when we rotate, who goes four plays and who goes five?

Wayne: Hold up, Hold up.

John: Remember at Virginia Tech, you got that sack and you were high-fiving and celebrating like you had just landed on the moon, then once everything settled down, you held your finger up for me to go in.

Wayne: I was tired!

Who's the easiest to get along with?

Levon: I guess Shep.

Wayne: You can trick Shep. You can get anything out of him.

Who's the nicest?

All: (including Levon): Kirk.

So what is John?

John: The handsomest.

You seem to get along so well. Why?

John: We joke around a lot when we are watching things on film. Say for instance, Wayne gets blocked pretty bad...

Wayne: Wait a minute. Why you gotta use me?

Levon: It's just an example, Wayne.

John: OK, we're not going to use Wayne, everybody in here knows that Wayne never gets blocked.

Levon: He's never made a mistake.

John: Like that time Jeb Flesch almost tore his facemask off.

Levon: But we're not going to use that. I think we get along so well because we help each other out like brothers. We really treat each other like brothers. We crack on each other.

Ashley: But we really care about each other. We do things off the field as well as on the field. We're like brothers.

John: These are definitely the brothers I never had.

Wayne: Occasionally I knock on John's door and ask for advice. I mean, I get on these guys, but there isn't anybody I respect as much.

John: I personally think the thing that makes us so good as a unit is that there is no jealousy. It gets me fired up to read Levon's name in a magazine, to see Wayne make freshman All-American, to see Ashley do his thing. I would put Shep at tight end, Kirk at fullback and Wayne at tailback...and of course, me up under center and we could go up against anyone.

What makes your unit so successful?

John: When it's third-and-five and they're driving, I think the outside linebackers want to take on the responsibility of making the key play and getting the crowd back into the game. That's the way we approach the game. We all feel like it is our fault if the offense gets two yards. If something good happens to the offense, we feel that there is something we could have done to prevent it.

Wayne: We want to make big plays. We never know when it's going to happen so we have to hustle all the time.

Levon: We expect it from each other.

How do you decide who starts and how do you work your rotation?

John: Whenever I'm on the field and I don't feel I can give 100 percent, I give a signal to warn Sheppard to buckle up because I'm coming out.

Ashley: We make the decision when we want to come in and go out. Starting the game has never really been a big deal for us.

John: There are times when it is so exciting out on the field that we just want to run out and see if they're tired.

Wayne: One time Kirk came running out there full speed, buckling up his helmet and looking all important, but I wasn't ready to come off the field. He said, "Don't send me back man, it will look bad."

Describe John for me?

Ashley: There's so much to say about John. He always treats everybody the same. The thing that I like about John is that he can always make people laugh, and he's always there when you need him.

Levon: Black Bart. He's helped me a lot because he knew so much when we got here. You're loose when you're around John. He's happy all the time. He's never upset. He's businesslike on the field.

Wayne: When I first came in I didn't like John. I thought, "Man, this dude is arrogant." I figured since we were both outside linebackers I would try to talk to him, but he didn't say two words to me. But when I really got to find out about John Johnson, he became the brother I never had. His attitude is so smooth. He has a tremendous attitude. I am trying to change my attitude toward him. And no one knows how clever he is. He's so intelligent. He's smart. He knows the game of football better than anyone on the team.

John (pantomining every description his teammates make): I guess I'm just the greatest guy I've ever known.

Tell me about Ashley.

John: Out of the four of us, Shep probably enjoys the game the most. He probably enjoys it more than anyone who ever played at Clemson University. Just to watch Shep get in there and do his thing gets you fired up. I know Levon is a very emotional player, but Ashley takes the cake. I remember the N.C.State game, when Ashley went down and hit that guy on the punt return, he sat there about 20 seconds by himself tearing the field up. If it was possible, I believe Shep would give every one of the 80,000 fans a hug after the game. It means a lot to Shep to just walk out there in front of those people and play.

Wayne: He's in his own world!

Levon: Have ever seen that wrestler, the Ultimate Warrior? He just runs into the ring and POW! That's Ashley for you. When I first saw Ashley I was like, "He is huge!" I knew I better get to be his friend. I walked right up to him and tried

It is no mere coincidence that Rick Stockstill is a college football coach or that he coaches quarterbacks at Clemson University. For Stockstill, it has been a lifetime of preparation and a systematic approach that has led him to his current position as well as his continued success.

Stockstill's affinity for football was practically a foregone conclusion considering the family he was born into. "My dad was a high school and college coach, so I grew up in a coaching family," says Stockstill, whose father is currently the head football coach at Fernandina Beach High School. "I was always interested in coaching. My dad was the biggest influence on my life and I owe everything to him.

"By the time I got to high school I had decided I that I wanted to go into coaching. I think any athlete who grows up in a coaching family has a head start on the field. My father helped me understand what it takes to prepare to be an athlete and a coach. Growing up around him helped me understand what type of work ethic was required for this field."

His father, Joel, coached at Georgetown College in Kentucky and in high schools in Ohio and Kentucky before moving to Fernandina Beach, FL. Rick moved with his family to Florida before his junior year of high school and then moved on to Florida State, where he played for Bobby Bowden.

As a member of Bowden's first recruiting class, Stockstill earned three letters at quarterback, made three bowl appearances, was selected to play in two senior all-star games and was named honorable mention All-American by the Sporting News in 1981. Stockstill fondly recalls victories over such power-house opponents as Nebraska, Ohio State, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, and he helped FSU to a pair of Top 10 final AP rankings. Surprisingly, FSU was the only school that had offered him a scholarship after high school.

Stockstill remembers his college experience as a valuable one. "College was a good learning experience for me," he says. "The exposure helped and I am very thankful for the opportunity. It played an important role in my success as a coach. Coach Bowden taught me a lot. But I still owe everything that I was as an athlete and that I am as a coach to my father. I knew what I wanted to do and I guess Coach Bowden reinforced everything my dad had already taught me. He's the block and I am the chip. I always wanted to be like him."

In 1982, after graduating from Florida State with a B.S. in physical education, Stockstill followed in his father's footsteps, accepting a position as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach at Bethune-Cookman College. Two years later, he was appointed assistant head coach and wide receiver coach at The University of Central Florida, where his 1987 team reached the semifinals of the Division II NCAA playoffs.

Judging from his background, it is no surprise that Stockstill took little time to become a successful college football coach. But when the Clemson staff went looking for a quarterback coach a couple of years ago, it wasn't only the Stockstill success that caught their eye, but the Stockstill name.

Although Rick Stockstill had never played in Death Valley, the name was posted on the back of a Tiger paw jersey for four years. His brother, Jeff, played for the Tigers from 1979-82, and Rick journeyed from Florida to witness two games during Jeff's senior year.

Stockstill still is very close to his family and is thankful for that. "I see my dad often. Last season he saw us play four games. Also he is in my recruiting area and always helps me there. My brother Jeff comes to four or five games a year and it's always nice to see him and his family."

He felt no pressure from his family to get into coaching, but it was always his dream. "My father encouraged me, but did not pressure me to pursue coaching," says

Stockstill. "Coaching is not for everybody. My brother grew up in the same environment that I did and went to college to play and now he is a very successful businessman."

Stockstill has taken the fundamentals of coaching and the philosophy he learned from his father and from Coach Bowden, and combined it with what he learned during his days as a quarterback. He knows that coaching quarterbacks is difficult because of the responsibility that goes with the position, but he has adapted different philosophy to handle this pressure. "Quarterbacks are different and we work on the mental and emotional aspects of the position everyday," says Stockstill. "A quarterback has to be unselfish. His only goal is to win, even though a quarterback gets a lot of glory when they win and some of the blame when they lose.

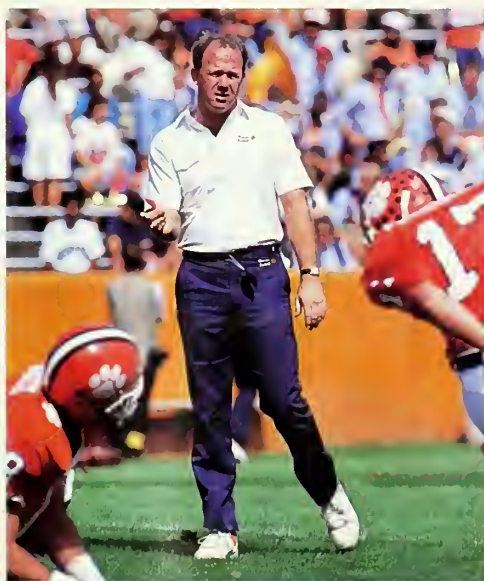

"If you are going to be a quarterback you have to accept the responsibility that goes with the position. You can't get too high or too low and we work on that every day. I have a book for quarterbacks that covers each subject a quarterback is going to have to deal with. A quarterback has to approach each day, one day at a time.

"A quarterback has to want to win at all costs. He doesn't care if he has to pitch the ball to the tailback 50 times a game, give the fullback the ball 30 times a game, or if he has to throw five touchdowns a game. His only goal is to win. Do what it takes to win and it doesn't matter how you go about it offensively. I was just as happy last year throwing the ball 17 times a game and running the option as I was throwing the ball 35 times a game at Florida State. It doesn't matter if it's pretty."

In his first year on the job, Stockstill's quarterbacks set a school record for completion percentage (60%) for the season and committed only 13 turnovers, a figure that is tied for third best mark in Clemson history.

Stockstill married the former Sara Fleischman of Orlando, FL on July 7, 1990. "It is very nice to have Sara here now. For the first year I was here she was still in Orlando and this was hard on both of us. But she loves Clemson and the people here."

You can be sure that Rick would be proud to have a son follow in his footsteps and keep Clemson football in the family.

Stockstill guided Clemson quarterbacks to a 60 percent completion percentage in 1989, an all-time Clemson best.

ACADEMIC LEARNING CENTER
CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

Ground was broken last winter on Clemson's $2.5 million Academic Learning Center. The facility, located near the center of campus, is expected to open in early 1991.

DECISION TO COME TO CLEMSON:

"I have the utmost respect for the fans and the style of aggressive football played here at all times. Someone was going to be the new coach. I was honored to be asked to visit about the job and after visiting with Dr. Max Lennon, Bobby Robinson, and Nick Lomax, I felt the commitment on everybody's part to pull together. I just knew this was the right time for us to come here."

STRATEGIES / PHILOSOPHIES OF FOOTBALL:

"My basic philosophy of football is that tough, hard-nose execution wins football games. I still believe that a great defense with a great kicking game will keep you in every ball game, and a solid offense that takes advantage of the talents and abilities of four skilled people will give you a chance to score a lot of points. I believe in a team concept that constantly encourages everyone to pull together as a team. Put the team first in all of the decisions because it is a team game and great team players who pull together can beat other teams with a lot more ability."

PROGRAM'S FUTURE:

"There's no doubt that Clemson can have a program that everyone can continue to be proud of. My goal is to see every young man graduate from Clemson, play the best football in America, and then go out and have a good job so he can continue to support his University by giving money, time and effort back to the university in the days ahead. There's no reason why we can't be that university for each student-athlete who's looking for the best."

DAILY ROUTINE:

"I'm really an early riser who likes to do as many things football-wise before the phone gets ringing and you have other problems that come out of the day. I really rely on my staff to do the work, and that's why they are so very important to our success. At lunchtime I try to do a little think and just get away from the phone with some uninterrupted thought. It also helps from eating so darn much."

IMPORTANT ASPECTS OF LIFE:

"The thing that's important in life is that we actually serve other people while we're here on earth. I know, for me, finding a personal relationship with the Lord so that I could see how I could be of service to other people was most important. I think everybody is at peace with themselves when they find that personal relationship and know what their talents and abilities are. I work through the avenue of sports, which has been so important and so much fun to me. I think everybody has to find that peace and when they do

THE POLLS:

"Certainly the polls are chosen in an inaccurate science, as so much information in the polls changes from day to day until the season finally starts. I don't put a lot of stock in the polls at the start of the season, and really from about mid-season on you probably get a better indication of the teams and where they stack up for the season. Certainly the polls are more important in football because we don't have a playoff."

DIVISION I PLAYOFF:

"As far as a playoff is concerned, we must consider what's best for the student-athlete. Fans want the playoff because of the interest that it might create in college football, but at the same time, I've got to look at the student-athlete and what he enjoys. With the 19 bowls that pay out so much money each year I know there are a lot of student-athletes who are benefitting from the week that they spend at their bowl. If you have a playoff all those things would not be possible and you would only have one winner and everybody else a bunch of losers."

"Another key concern would be giving up any quality academic time. I know last year some people started second semester on January 3 and others not until Jan. 16. If those two teams were playing, I think you'd have a hard time saying that both of them would have an equal chance to get ready for that ballgame if one of them had to go to classes for two weeks and the other one had nothing to do, but practice. If there were no bowls I would be in favor of a playoff, but since there are bowls, I am for the bowl structure."

PROP 48:

"We ought to take student-athletes who can qualify, and certainly the high schools are doing a better job and hopefully will continue to do a better job. I think that true student-athletes ought to be admitted to college and those who have the core curriculum behind them, I think, are the most likely to succeed in college. I really believe wholeheartedly in the core curriculum more than I do the test score."

Hatfield is charged with taking the program into the 90s, a decade that could see much change in intercollegiate athletics.

they'll be able to serve other people."

FIRST SPRING PRACTICE AT CLEMSON:

"The first spring practice went extremely well. One criteria I use for a successful spring practice is the amount of days that our team can actually be on the practice field to improve themselves. This year was great as we had a very minimal amount of injuries and we did improve. I was most appreciative of the attitude of our seniors and returning players who went out and tried to get better each and every day and tried to set a tempo that the younger players would emulate. I thought we improved tremendously in the spring and got to know one another as coaches and players."

RED-SHIRTING:

"I don't think there's anybody that can't benefit by red-shirting and, at the same time, we don't go into any season planning to red-shirt any young person. If they are able to play this year and help the team win, we'll put the team first and they will play. At the same time, if a young freshman is not playing a lot and just going to play in spots, I certainly would try to save him for that whole year. He would be a much better player at age 22 than he is at age 17."

PEOPLE IN SPORTS I ADMIRE:

"One of the first I admired was Tom Landry because he kept his consistency all through his professional career. He was the same day in and day out, he was imaginative, his teams always competed consistently well, and he was always in the thick championship races. He lost several championships before he finally won several, but he was still the same person no matter what."

Another was Coach Bear Bryant and the way he was absorbed in the football team and his ideas in regards to making the players the best he could each and every year. I learned an awful lot from Doug Dickey (Florida) by coaching under him for nine years. A few other guys as players that I really admire are Jack Reynolds and Roger Craig. They just totally commit themselves to be the best at their positions, and that's why they have played so long in professional football."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF CLEMSON:

"Clemson is a university that has so many, many people who care about it and want to do all they can to see that the success of the program continues. I love the quaintness of the town and admire the fun and the love that the students have for Clemson."

MEMORABLE PLAYING EXPERIENCES:

"The most memorable experience I had as a player certainly was the 1965 Cotton Bowl when we defeated Nebraska to win our national championship. Another certainly was returning the punt 81 yards against Texas in the 1964 season when they were ranked #1 in the nation and we were ranked #4. We defeated them 14-13 and we stopped a two-point play in the last 30 seconds of the ballgame. I think the other most memorable experience took place in my sophomore year. I was #6 quarterback and safety a week before our opening game. I got my chance on defense the week of the first game and actually ended up playing a lot that first game and started for three years. That taught me an awful lot about perseverance and just hanging in there."

RECRUITING NATIONALLY:

"Certainly I think Clemson has the reputation and name to attract any student in America. Once we get them on the campus it will be very hard not to be enthused about coming here to school. We will continue to recruit nationally but, at the same time, we'll spend an awful lot of time in an area where the parents can come be part of their sons lives."

DECIDING TO BECOME A COACH:

"That's really an odd thing to recall because I had planned to go into some type of business after I majored in accounting at Arkansas. It was just a miracle that the national coaching convention happened to be in New York City the year I was at Army as a Freshman coach. That enabled three of us to go spend the whole time there and make the all-lobby team. I did get a job offer at Montana State, but then Coach (Doug) Dickey made an assistant freshman's job available to me at Tennessee. I really thought this was an opportunity too great to turn down."

SCHEDULING:

"Certainly our number-one priority is to win the conference and every game on that non-conference schedule. At the same time getting national exposure helps us in our polls and the reputation that Clemson enjoys. For that reason we always want to play a top 10 division I A school every year as well as our traditional non-conference rival, South Carolina. The other games depend on what we need to do, but nobody enjoys a greater thrill of watching our players play than our fans do, so we want to continue to have at least six home games here because it is so vital to our program."

IMPORTANCE OF HIS WIFE SANDY:

"My wife, Sandy, and I have been married 21 years and I just couldn't do without her. She balances out so many deficiencies that I have and really has a perspective on people, sometimes I get blinded or lose my perspective on things. She's so vocal and emotional we have grown strong together. She is also a tremendous cook, we've only had two bad meals in 21 years."

FACING ADVERSITY:

"I don't think anyone goes through life without learning to overcome adversity because it's going to happen somewhere in your life. It's not a matter of if, it's a matter of when. That's probably one of the first things we have to teach all of our players. They were all great players on their team coming out of high school, but everything won't go their way in college. You find out a lot about your character when you have adversity and you learn to keep on keepin' on. I think that the poem written in 1912 called "Alumnus Football" says it best, "everytime you get knocked down just keep on getting up, get up one more time to get knocked down and you'll be a winner, because that's the way you learn about life, you just keep on getting up."

FRANK HOWARD:

"Coach Howard has such an insight into Clemson and its people and has provided us with so many great student-athletes and down-home football and humor. He's been a great resource in my short time here so far. I'm going to have to get a new book to handle all the plays that he gives me."

COACHING AT AIR FORCE:

"The great thing about taking over Air Force is they were down and nobody else wanted the job very much. We had to start from the bottom and really pulled together as a team and as a unit with athletes who couldn't run very fast but had big hearts. We finally recruited some football players who could become cadets, I thought that made a big difference in our program. I'll never forget our very first victory at Air Force over Notre Dame. The game was already won in the hearts and minds of our players the week before the game actually began. And then the next year the victory over Notre Dame in South Bend was one of the highlights of my sporting career as we blocked a field goal on the last play of the game to defeat them, 23-22. I knew that none of our players would play professional football, but I knew that each and every one of them at one time could be the general that would have a decision about World War III. For that reason I wanted to be sure that every good lesson about football would be given to all of our players from the first teamer to the fifth teamer."

FAN SUPPORT:

"I don't think there's any doubt that Clemson fans stand as one of the most intimidating forces with our opponents, whether it's at home or on the road. Our players play so darned hard because they know so many people care about them. We've even had players who played 10 years ago come in here from opposing teams and tell me that it was the most awesome feeling they've ever had coming here. We're going to keep that up."

MOST IMPORTANT GAMES IN COACHING CAREER:

"Probably the Air Force victory at Notre Dame in 1983 and the second one that goes with it was a 26-21 victory over Houston to win the first Southwest Conference championship for Arkansas in 1988. That was Arkansas's first conference title and Cotton Bowl appearance in 12 years. Certainly the Houston ball game of 1989 was my most exciting at Arkansas when we defeated them 45-39 and had 631 yards total offense. It seemed as if either could go all the way on any play."

FAVORITE MOTTO:

"I will play my best or live my best this day."

Outside Linebackers

to get on his good side. He can run and he is a missile. He comes and gets you. He didn't even hit that guy from N.C.State straight up, he just kinda knicked him. If he had hit him head on, that guy would still be in the hospital today. That's the ultimate warrior right there, baby.

John: We'd still be sending that guy get-well cards if Shep had hit him.

Wayne: John and I have a nice relationship. Kirk and I have a nice relationship. But they are going to leave. Me and Shep are going to still be here, so our relationship is going to grow. I admire him and his ability.

How about Levon?

John: Levon Kirkland. The name alone gets me fired up. RoboKirk.

Ashley: Mr. Excitement. He's my ideal player. I guess if I had to choose a person who I could pattern myself after, I would want to be the way he is. On the field, he's wild. Off the field, he's straightforward and I can go talk to him.

Wayne: There is no jealousy between us, but there is competition...and there is intense competition between me and Kirk. If I see Kirk doing something, making a big hit or an interception, I say, "Man, I wish I could have been out there, I probably could have done the same thing, or done it even better." We challenge each other.

Ashley: Levon's the knight in shining armor.

Wayne: He's our King Arthur.

Last but not least, tell me about Wayne.

Ashley: The japper.

John: He'll jap you in a minute. He'd jap you out of your own name.

Would he give it back?

John: Yeah, after he'd washed it a few times and its too small for him and lost a couple of the letters. My name would be Jo Johnso by the time Wayne got through with it.

Ashley: I first met Wayne at a wide receiver/quarterbacks camp in high school and he was just the same as he is now. I met Wayne again at Clemson camp. We were getting ready to run the 40 and I figured I could beat him so I was talking a little junk to him. But when we started to run, he just took off like a jet. I didn't think he was that fast. The competition between us started back then. Wayne likes to make people laugh by cracking on other people. That's a part of Wayne and if you take that away, you take away Wayne.

Levon: Wayne pushes me. He can play. He can run. He's a bad boy, but he gets the job done. He jokes around a lot but he studies hard in the classroom. He cracks on me all the time but that's him. You might as well get used to it, because he's going to do it every day.

John: Wayne's like the bad little brother. It's gotta be his way or no way. He's the problem child.

Wayne: I always WANT my way, but I'm always out-voted.

Ashley: Wayne is a very intense player on the field. He wants to make the play every time with no exception. He loves the game and loves to make tackles. I respect him so much. He knows how to get to the football and get to his man.

Tell me about your group in a nutshell.

Levon: John knows the game. Me and Wayne just like to hit.

Wayne: Ashley's like a windup toy. It's unconscious. I have the craziness. John has the intelligence. Ashley has the momentum. Levon has the ability.

Levon: When I look in the Sporting News and see a picture of all of us together, it means more than anything. When I have kids and grandkids, I will tell them that I was part of an elite group.

John: Like I said before, these are the brothers I never had. The opportunity to have friends like these guys and to play with talent like these guys doesn't come along every day.

Wayne: And I don't think its going to stop here. When I get out in the professional world, I'm going to look John up and Kirk up. If I ever establish a business, I want to work with guys like this. And when I'm looking for friends to stand beside me, I want these three right here every time.

winning touchdown to give Clemson a 20-15 win over Virginia.

Sept. 27, 1958—Clemson defeated North Carolina 26-21 as Frank Howard picked up his 100th collegiate coaching win. Also the scoreboard at the east end of the stadium was used for the first time. The scoreboard had an added feature that makes it very unique, not to mention it signals to Tiger faithful when Clemson scores—the Tiger above the scoreboard moves his tail after each Clemson touchdown or field goal.

Oct. 1, 1960—The west stands are used for the first time. Clemson defeated Virginia Tech 13-7. The addition added 5,676 seats.

Nov. 12, 1960—Clemson defeated South Carolina 12-2 as it was the first time South Carolina had ever played at Clemson.

Sept. 24, 1966—First game Howard's rock was at Death Valley. The rock was given to Howard by S.C. Jones and the athletic officials placed the rock on a pedestal on top of the hill overlooking the stadium.

Sept. 23, 1967—Clemson started the tradition of touching Howard's Rock. In a Friday afternoon pep talk, Coach Frank Howard told the players, "I want every fellow who's going to give 100% to slap that rock before he runs down the hill. It will give you supernatural powers".

Nov. 1, 1969—Frank Howard won his last game as a Clemson coach with a 40-0 win over Maryland at Clemson. This was also his last game as head coach in Death Valley.

July 21, 1970—Clemson announces the use of a new insignia—The Tiger paw. With the aid of Henderson Advertising Agency, the Tiger paw became the new trademark of Clemson Athletics. The paw print can be seen around the stadium on many surfaces, including peoples' faces.

Sept. 9, 1972—Clemson fans used the aluminum bleachers for the first time. The aluminum bleachers replaced the wooden bleachers.

Sept. 8, 1973—Pro-style goal posts were used for the first game in a 14-12 win over The Citadel. The new posts replaced the "H" shaped apparatus.

Nov. 16, 1974—The playing surface of Memorial Stadium was named Frank Howard Field.

Sept. 16, 1978—Clemson won its 100th game in Death Valley with a 58-3 win over The Citadel.

Nov. 25, 1978—Clemson fans used the south upper deck for the first time as 63,050 fans watched Clemson's 41-23 win over South Carolina. At the time, it was the largest crowd ever to see a game between Philadelphia, PA and Birmingham, AL. This south side addition also allowed for the building of luxury boxes, a new press box, and a president's box. Clemson was probably the first university to have luxury boxes in its stadium.

Summer, 1982—3,800 permanent seats were added on the hill so that more season ticket holders would have a permanent seat. It also allowed for the addition of the handicapped section.

Sept. 3, 1983—The north upper deck was used for the first time. The 15,000 additional seats brought the total capacity to 79,854. Lights once again came to Memorial Stadium as part of the north upper deck addition.

Sept. 3, 1988—The Tigers ran down the hill for the 200th time as they defeated Virginia Tech 40-7.

Nov. 19, 1988—A crowd of 84,867 witnessed Clemson's 29-10 win over South Carolina in Memorial Stadium. This was the largest crowd ever to see a game in Memorial Stadium.

??, 1991—The 10,000,000th fan to see a football game at Memorial Stadium will enter the gates. In 48 previous seasons, 9,286,297 fans have attended games at Memorial Stadium.

Emergency Services

By Christine Kelly
Genentech, Inc.

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART AT-

TACK: The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.

2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

Official Football Signals

NOTE: Signal numbers 25 and 26 are for future expansion.

We've cleaned up more towns than Wyatt Earp.

This may come as a shock, but the average American home is loaded with hazardous wastes.

The fact is, a lot of that seemingly harmless stuff we've all got lying around the garage or the basement could be incredibly dangerous.

Like the old jars of paint from the kids' model airplane years. The pesticides from some long-forgotten experiment in home gardening. And the brake fluid and motor oil from the days when do-it-yourself seemed like a good idea.

The memories may fade away, but the hazardous chemicals won't.

However, in city-after-progressive-city, people are waking up to the fact that we can't continue to treat our homes like hazardous waste dumps, and we can't continue to throw toxic chemicals out with the rest of the garbage.

In hundreds of cases, Laidlaw Environmental Services has been called in to help communities manage a series of Household Hazardous Waste Collection Days.

Which makes a lot of sense, because Laidlaw Environmental Services is one of the nation's leading companies in the management, movement, treatment and disposal of chemical wastes. And one of the leading consultants in helping people clean up their cities.

So, if you'd like to know more about establishing a household cleanup program for your community, give us a call at Laidlaw Environmental Services today.

And we'll help you get the troublemakers out of town by sundown.

You make the Call!

QUESTION: Clemson has just won the big game and you and your family are excited. After the game, some of the football team walk past where you are tailgating. You offer a glass of iced tea and a piece of chicken to the players. Have you violated any NCAA rules?

ANSWER: Yes. It is against the rules to offer or give anything to a student-athlete before, during or after a game. This includes beverages, food or anything else. The only thing you can do is to give them your congratulations.

Clemson's First Bowl Game?

by Sam Blackman

Although it was not officially a modern postseason extravaganza similar to what football fans enjoy today, the 1903 Clemson-Cumberland game had some of the criteria of being Clemson's first bowl game, 87 football seasons ago.

The game between Clemson and Cumberland was billed as the game to decide the championship of the south, as the winner would be the champion of the SIAA, (Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association), an early conference that consisted of major colleges and universities in the South. The SIAA crown was a formable title in this day and age, as there were many collegiate powers prowling the playing fields of the south.

In this particular season, Clemson was considered the best in the Atlantic Coast Region as the Tigers had defeated Georgia, Georgia Tech, N.C. State, and Davidson. The only loss came to the hands of North Carolina. Clemson had outscored its opponents, 156-11, including a 73-0 win over Georgia Tech.

Cumberland was considered the best team in the western part of the southern region as it had won over powers such as Vanderbilt, Tennessee, and Sewanee and had scored 304 points.

Originally, the two teams' seasons would have drawn to a close in early November, but the interest surrounding college football to decide who was the best football team in the south could not be ignored by players on both sides, not to mention the fans. The result was Clemson and Cumberland officials agreeing to meet on November 26, in Montgomery, AL.

Like today's bowl games, a contract was signed and the game was to take place at a neutral site and on a holiday, Thanksgiving Day. The contract, drawn up just two weeks before the game, stated the contest was to be played at Oak Park in Montgomery, AL. The game was to begin promptly at 3:00 p.m. and end at 5:00 p.m. sharp.

The game had added significance for Clemson as it was the Tigers' first opportunity to prove itself as a southern power as this was only the eighth year Clemson had fielded a football team.

It would be a battle of Cumberland's backfield of giants charging the Clemson line and a battle of Clemson's smaller, swifter backs making long runs around the end. The average height and weight of the Clemson starting 11 was 5' 9 1/2" and 163 1/2 pounds. Cumberland was the heavier team as the average height and weight was 5'11" and 172 pounds.

Some interesting notes on Clemson's football team included: halfback Fritz Furtrick held Clemson's shot put record, while fullback Jock Hanvey held the school's hammer throw record. Quarterback John Maxwell was the catcher on the Tiger baseball team, while right end Hope Sadler was Clemson's record holder in the broad jump and the 440-yard dash. Left end C.V. Sitton was named all-southern end on 12 teams and was recognized as the best college baseball pitcher in the south. J.A. Forsyth, a right guard, had played every down for the last three years as a Tiger. J.A. McKeown was Clemson's largest player on the 1903 team as he was 6'2" and weighed 194 pounds.

The game was dominated by Cumberland in the early going as the Bulldogs jumped to an early 11-0 lead. Cumberland's first score was made by line plunges eight minutes into the game. Minturn scored from a short distance. M.O. Bridges kicked the extra point giving Cumberland a 6-0 lead. (In 1903, touchdowns were worth five points, while extra points were worth one point.)

Four minutes later, Cumberland struck again as Head crossed the goal line and M.O. Bridges failed to convert on the extra point.

After a 10-minute halftime, Cumberland kicked off to Clemson. The Tigers' John Maxwell took the ball at his own 10-yard line and raced 100 yards to score Clemson's first touchdown of the game. (The fields were 110 yards in length in 1903.) The extra point was no good as Cumberland led 11-5.

Clemson then took advantage of a Cumberland fumbled punt on the Bulldogs' 35-yard line late in the game. With less than a minute to go in the contest, darkness hovered over the field and the hundreds of spectators who had braved the cold afternoon were quiet, anxiously awaiting the last play of the game. Clemson had one last chance and of course Cumberland was expecting a trick play.

"25-86-3-14 hike!" rang out Maxwell's voice as he gave signals for the last play. After the ball was centered, a Clemson man dressed in a gold jersey was seen with the ball unexpectedly running up the middle through Cumberland's defense for 35 yards and into the end zone with little if any interference.

Fritz Furtrick, the Tigers' right halfback had scored the tying touchdown by simply running up the middle over center as time expired. Jock Hanvey kicked the extra point. (two point conversions were not legal in 1903.) The game was over and Clemson and Cumberland had tied 11-11. The Tigers were co-champions of the south and the SIAA conference, probably the first major milestone in the history of Clemson football.

When word reached Clemson that the game had ended in a tie, the Clemson students and local townspeople built a bonfire and paraded around campus.

Then came the dispute for the coveted game ball. The ball always goes to the winning team, but the score was a tie. Captain Suddarth of Cumberland insisted on Captain Sadler of Clemson taking the trophy, while Captain Sadler was equally as insistent that Captain Suddarth should have the ball. A compromise was finally reached after 10 minutes. The ball would go to Patrick J. Sweeny, the patrolman, who had been efficiently guarding the entrance to the side lines and warning the media, substitutes, and fans to "get down in front" so the spectators could see the game, or Clemson's first unofficial bowl game.

This game had another bit of irony to it. This was John Heisman's last game as the Tigers' head coach as he accepted Georgia Tech's head coaching job later that night. Heisman concluded his Clemson coaching career with a player scoring on the last play of his final game as the Tiger coach.

From this touchdown play in Montgomery, AL a winning bowl tradition was started as Clemson established itself not only as a southern power but as a national power when bowl games are played.

Clemson's 1903 team tied Cumberland 11-11 on the last play of the game in what could be called Clemson's first bowl game ever.

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

MY DEGREE GOT ME THE INTERVIEW. ARMY ROTC GOT ME THE JOB.

Things got pretty competitive for this job. I'm sure my college degree and good grades kept me in the running. But in the end it was the leadership and management experience I got through Army ROTC that won them over.

You can begin to develop impressive leadership skills with an Army ROTC elective. Register now without obligation.

ARMY ROTC

THE SMARTEST COLLEGE
COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.

In a year that saw many changes in the Clemson University Athletic Department, one thing remained a constant; the success of IPTAY. Despite the destruction and financial loss caused by Hurricane Hugo, as well as an increase in the minimum IPTAY donation from $30 to $100, faithful Clemson supporters were still able to make this another record-breaking year for IPTAY. As the nation's largest fundraising organization, IPTAY was able to raise $5.8 million towards its commitment to the student-athlete. Due to these efforts both on the part of the IPTAY staff, and the generosity and support of the Clemson community, Clemson was one of only two schools in the nation (the only other being Illinois) to have teams participate in a bowl game (1989 Mazda Gator Bowl), the NCAA Basketball Tournament (advanced to the Sweet Sixteen in the East Regional), and the NCAA Baseball Tournament (Central Region).

Clemson was the only school to gain at least one win in each of these post-season events. Clemson also produced 82 first-team All-ACC athletes, 20 All-Americans, captured three ACC Tournament Championships, and won two regular-season ACC Championships, including its first-ever in men's basketball. Nine teams finished in the final Top 25 of their respective sports.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of this success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. The 1989-90 academic year marks the 26th consecutive year of increased contributions to the IPTAY scholarship fund.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Clemson continues to be one of the few schools in the nation to award the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA for 18 men's and women's varsity sports. Since 1934, IPTAY has provided scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

Contributions by IPTAY are responsible for many of Clemson's outstanding facilities.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to assure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

IPTAY is currently playing an intricate role in the Campaign for Clemson, a long-range fundraising project of the University. IPTAY has been asked to raise $2.5 million of the University's overall goal of 62 million dollars for the construction and development of the Learning Center, a new academic building on East Campus. The funds for this project come via IPTAY donors and IPTAY has already raised over one million dollars for the project.

The Learning Center is presently on schedule to open in the spring of 1991 and its construction is well under way. The Learning Center is a 29,000 square-foot facility and it will house the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building will contain various-sized study and tutoring rooms to be used for individual study as well as for small group instruction.

Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium will also be contained in the center.

The generous support of 18,200 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $32 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the new outdoor track, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide funding for the Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY budgets financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. IPTAY was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts which are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of any kind at Clemson, providing $1.38 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous success of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup which allows members to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 members.

This year's IPTAY speaking circuit was highlighted by Clemson's new football coach, Ken Hatfield. A man of character and integrity, as well as a proven winner, Hatfield stressed the importance of IPTAY and its mission. Hatfield commented on his first impressions of IPTAY.

"The IPTAY organization and the people involved far surpassed the tremendous reputation that they had before I had arrived here. Allison Dalton, Bert Henderson, and Bob Mahony and all of the rest who are involved, organize and coordinate the program as well as I have seen. Every local meeting was precisely managed." Hatfield continued, "I guess the thing that stuck out most though, was the atmosphere of love and support for Clemson exhibited by all of the people I met."

IPTAY donors are kept up-to-date with Clemson athletics through the Orange and White. This is an official IPTAY publication which is distributed exclusively to IPTAY donors in appreciation of their support.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Allison Dalton is the leader of America's top athletic fundraising organization.

All Kinds of Good Stuff™

Opening day 1990 will probably seem a bit strange for Bruce Cook when Clemson kicks off its football season against Long Beach State this afternoon.

For the past 24 years Cook has served as either the director or assistant director of Tiger Band.

But Cook will change his focus from musical arrangements of halftime shows to arranging the schedule and management of the 51st Concert Series on the Clemson Campus this year since becoming the assistant to the department head for the Department of Performing Arts.

"I'm sure I am going to miss it," Cook said. "You can't be a band director for 24 years at Clemson, and 10 years prior to that in high school, without loving your work. But it just seemed like a logical career choice."

And it only seemed logical that as Clemson begins construction of a new Student Performance Center, Cook would be the appropriate choice to take a leading role in the development of the new facility's music and theater programming.

Cook has seen the growth of Tiger Band from a small block of 80 to eventually numbers as many as 300.

"I remember in the 60s, it wasn't popular to be a part of any kind of organized activity," Cook said. "The whole atmosphere was anti-establishment. There's not anything that's more established on a university campus than a marching band. It has to be by its very nature, regimented."

"We went through a period of time when our membership dropped. When I say drop, it didn't drop that significantly, but in terms of a continuous growth, we just didn't experience it at a time when other universities were growing. That caused us real concern."

"When we went to the Gator Bowl in 1977, it was a crisis as far as I was concerned as a director, because we got to the point where the fans couldn't hear us in the stands. They couldn't make out what the band was playing in the stands."

But a funny thing happened.

As the fortunes of Clemson football began to improve in the late 70s, Tiger Band experienced significant growth.

Even as late as 1978, Cook said Tiger Band's numbers were still less than 100.

But by 1982, the year following Clemson's national championship, Cook said Tiger Band peaked at 301 members.

"It really mushroomed," Cook said about the tremendous growth of Tiger Band. "And as far as a band director is concerned, that's one of the greatest experiences one can go through."

While Cook has reason to take tremendous pride in the development of Tiger Band, he is also quick to point out others who played an integral role.

From the acknowledgements of former Clemson president, Dr. Robert C. Edwards, whose support of the band during the lean years was a great boost to the morale of the organization when times were tough, to the support from the athletic department and IPTAY, Cook is quick to acknowledge the support the band received.

"The people in athletics have realized the importance of the band and have funded it. That's benefited not only the marching band, but other bands as well."

Cook also acknowledged the support of Clemson fans.

"They seem to be genuinely proud of what the band has done. Outside band directors that have come down here to perform, have commented how receptive the audience is."

While he has moved on to manage the concert series, Cook said Tiger Band is being left in capable hands. Dr. Richard Goodstein will take over after serving as the assistant director for eight years.

And Cook is enthusiastic about the prospects of having a new Student Performance Center and the impact it will have on the university's concert series, variety series, and special events.

"When we get into the new building, we'll have an opportunity to really showcase things in a nice atmosphere and theater," Cook said.

Although without Cook at the helm, the plus-280 member band will offer an upbeat halftime show today as Tiger Band takes us on a cruise through the Caribbean. The ride begins with an opening Fanfare, followed by "Brazil" and "Latin Disco", directed by Dr. Richard E. Goodstein.

Tiger Band will take us further into the islands with the hit songs "Under the Sea" and "Sunrise Lady."

And of course, no halftime would be complete unless it ended with Tiger Band's salute to Tiger fans throughout the world with "The Song That Shakes the Southland," TIGER RAG!

Next to the excitement of a Tiger touchdown, nothing can bring Clemson fans to their feet and make them clap their hands the way the Tiger Band can. It is hard to imagine Clemson football without the Tiger Band.

Tiger Band is the official marching band of Clemson University. Widely known for its precision marching, dynamic sound and famous Clemson Spirit, the band performs at all Clemson football games, at home and away. Every year it plays before hundreds of thousands of fans, and has appeared at professional football games, many televised broadcasts and numerous bowl games including Orange, Peach, Citrus and Gator Bowls. The Flag Corps and Tiger Twirlers are also integral parts of Tiger Band.

Being a member of Tiger Band requires almost as much time as football. The band rehearses on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 5:00 to 6:30 PM. On game weeks, additional rehearsals are held from 5:00 to 6:30 PM on Fridays and from 7:45 to 9:30 AM on Saturdays. All marching rehearsals are held on the Band Practice Field adjacent to Fike Recreation Center. Almost every evening, as Clemson students head back to their dorm rooms after dinner, they can hear the strains of "Tiger Rag" echoing over the campus as the band is hard at work.

Judging by the success of Tiger Band under Cook's guidance, the future of the Clemson Concert Series is certainly a bright one.

Portions of this article have been reprinted with the permission of the Orange and White.

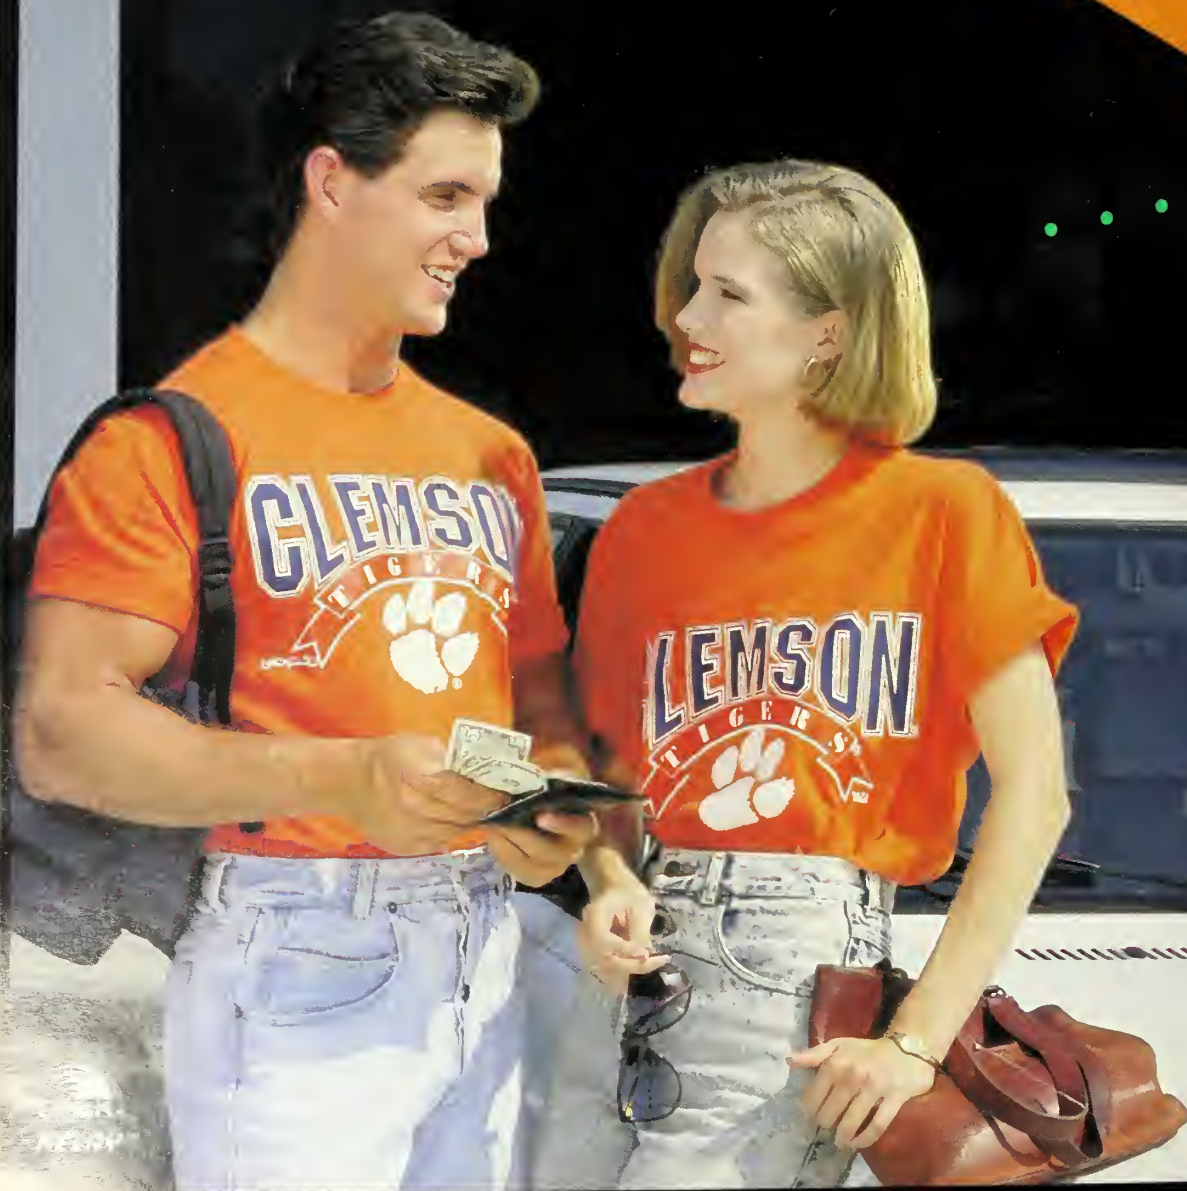

Throughout Bruce Cook's 24-year tenure with the Tiger Band, he has seen the membership grow by almost four-fold.

John Heisman never had the opportunity to coach a football game in 'Death Valley'.

And that's a shame.

But judging from some of the things we've read about Heisman, he wouldn't care if his players rubbed Howard's rock or Howard's head. And he definitely would not have ridden the team in two-horse wagons around to the other end of the field to run down the hill.

If Heisman hadn't been born 40 years too soon, he might have been the most famous coach ever to grace the Valley's sidelines. But since he didn't, the coach pacing the north sidelines this afternoon might be the best known.

George Allen has been recognized for his gridiron successes in collegiate and professional ranks. And after reaching the pinnacle of pro football by carrying the Washington Redskins to a Super Bowl and the playoffs seven times before retiring from pro football, the itch became so bad that Desenex couldn't bring any relief.

Allen brings his Long Beach State team into the 'Valley' this afternoon stamped with his trademark ... play to win.

Allen — The Pacer — will be walking where a good number of other famous coaches have made steps: Tatum, Dooley, Bryant, Walker, Murray, Devine, Butts, Bowden, Jordan and possibly a few others who hope to be famous.

Jim Tatum brought two of his nationally-ranked Maryland teams to the 'Valley' and defeated the Tigers twice. The 1955 game winner was going to the Orange Bowl to play Oklahoma. And things looked good for Clemson for awhile — leading 12-0 in the first half— before losing, 25-12.

When Frank Howard met Tatum at midfield after the game, a Clemson fan was giving the Maryland coach down the country. Howard intervened by telling the irate Tiger to go peddle his papers as only he could tell him.

The fan persisted and told Howard: "I'm an IPTAY member." Howard asked: "How much do you give?" And the fan answered: "Ten dollars." Howard said: "You've already said about $12 worth. Now, get on out of here before I whup up on you."

Howard and Tatum would always get a friendly feud going in the summer — about the time ticket sales were going good — and generally ended up playing before a full house. Then they would walk arm and arm off the field counting up their split.

In 1958 Tatum brought his North Carolina team to Clemson, and the Tigers had come from behind three times to win, 26-21. Playing before the 'Valley's' first 40,000-plus crowd, this turned out to be Howard's 100th victory.

Two of the game's greatest characters — Howard and Douglas Clyde "Peahead" Walker — clashed four times in Memorial Stadium and Walker came out on top all four times and ended up holding a 7-4 mark against Howard from 1940 through 1950.

Once Walker brought his team to Clemson before any motels existed here. The team stayed in Greenville the Friday night before the game and was furnished a dressing room Saturday morning after arriving on campus. Howard seemed awfully anxious for Walker to arrive and checked several times before the team drove up.

When Walker got off the bus, a highway patrolman stepped up and put a pair of handcuffs on him saying there had been a bank robbed in the area that morning and that he fitted the description of the man suspected of the crime. In a few minutes, Howard came out and said there must be some mistake as that was his friend, Coach Walker. There was little doubt that Walker knew who was behind his 'arrest'.

"Shug" Jordan of Auburn brought some nationally ranked teams to Clemson. The War Eagles had a powerhouse Howard's last three years and the two following his retirement. Howard had a five-year contract with Auburn, and three of them had the passing combination of "Sullivan-to-Beasley" clicking on all cylinders. In three games, Auburn outscored Clemson, 130-13.

Although he only made one appearance in Memorial Stadium, Dan Devine of Notre Dame left with some respect for the Tigers, although Clemson fans had other thoughts of the Irish coach because of some of his sideline tactics.

The Tigers were leading 17-7 and were driving at the Irish 12-yard line when a fumble stopped the drive late in the third quarter. A quarterback named Montana woke up the Irish offense and himself scored on two short runs to give Notre Dame a 21-17 victory as more than a dozen bowl scouts couldn't believe what they saw the first three quarters. Notre Dame won the National Championship that season.

Vince Dooley of Georgia and "Little Brother" Bill Dooley each have brought teams into the Tigers' lair ... Vince for the most games (10) and Bill from the most schools (3). Wally Butts made his only appearance (1955) and Clemson's 26-7 victory broke a 10-game Bulldog winning streak against the Tigers. Johnny Griffith was 0-1-1, but that 1962 contest will always be remembered as the day it hailed at halftime.

Vince is 5-4-1 on Frank Howard Field and in seven of those 10 games, his Bulldogs have been nationally-ranked. He is 1-3-1 in his last five appearances, but in the four games prior to those here, Vince shut out the Tigers three times.

"Little Brother" won three out of five from Clemson at North Carolina, just one of four at Virginia Tech and he is 0-1 since going to Wake Forest. His lone Hokie triumph was in 1986 on regional TV when Bill Spiers, a 1a Milwaukee Brewers, had his second career punt blocked in the end zone for a TD.

Howard and "Bear" Bryant had a four-year, home-and-home contract (1966-69). Although Alabama won all four games, the Tide got out by the skin of its teeth in 1967 with a 13-10 win when the Tigers missed two chip-shot field goals. Danny Ford played on the 1969 Alabama team that defeated Clemson 38-13.

Howard told Bryant after the contract was signed that if he caught Bryant in South Carolina recruiting any of his football players, he was going to have him arrested and held for ransom—the ransom being a manure spreader.

So the 72-year-old Allen, having experienced only three losing seasons out of 23 in all classifications, opens "The Future Is Now" for Long Beach State football today against the Tigers. Having been out of head coaching since following the 1984 season, the announcement of Allen's hiring last December brought immediate recognition, enthusiasm and acceptance to the program.

Regardless of the outcome of today's game, Allen will leave some more footprints in the grass of the north sidelines ... the oldest ever left there. Maybe he can hear the voices of Bear, Jim, Vince or Peahead telling him what plays will work the best against the Tigers.

Chances are he'll just be happy to be back coaching again ... pacing the sidelines.

Howard playfully scolds Bear Bryant for beating the Tigers.
